

Abigail Monroe

St. Thomas, Jamaica.

Abigail Monroe's dreams have always been centered around making a significant impact in persons' lives even if it's simply just by her smile. Her passion for service has driven her to participate in outreach activities outside of and within her school, Morant Bay High. While maintaining a superb academic performance, Abigail has managed to be an executive on various clubs, societies and committees. She serves in the capacity of student council representative, mentor to young females and event coordinator amongst other roles. Abigail's involvement in the Morant Bay Circuit of Baptist Churches as youth fellowship president, lay preacher and worship leader has contributed to her faith in God and, also, further developed her interpersonal skills. Volunteering at children's homes, her church's mission activities, organizations and beach cleanups contribute to her contentment. In 2018, she was selected to study at the prestigious University of California Berkeley at their Berkeley Business Academy for Youth Entrepreneurship, as well as, for their Critical Thinking Program during summer 2019. These experiences have developed her skills in academia, time management, leadership and team development. After completing her undergraduate degree in Human Resource Management at the University of the West Indies Mona, her aspiration is to become a human resources consultant. This Atlanta Jamaican Association scholarship opportunity, for which she is grateful, has further empowered Abigail to help her family and community and to make a positive transformation in business and society.
